Informe semanal de materias primas cotizadas de ETF Securities

Las entradas de capital en el oro sugieren un optimismo cauteloso; la toma de beneficios en el crudo impulsa una salida de capitales de sus ETPs

- El oro es el metal que mayor volumen de capital ha captado en lo que va del año, por encima de los $1.500 millones, mientras los inversores mantienen una posición cautelosa.
- La semana pasada se aceleró la salida de capitales del crudo a medida que los inversores recortaron beneficios. Existe una clara preocupación sobre cuán sostenible puede su reciente avance y su potencial de apreciación limitado a corto plazo.
- La evolución de los precios de las materias primas dependerá de lo que suceda esta semana con la reunión de la Fed. Para los inversores será crucial ver si el central estadounidense aumentará o no los intereses, al igual que la dirección del dólar.

El oro es el metal precioso que mayor volumen de capital lleva captado en 2016, por encima de los $1.500 millones. Los ETPs sobre oro físico registraron entradas de capitales por décima semana consecutiva, por un total de $114.1 millones. Los activos cíclicos, en particular la renta variable, han tenido dificultades para avanzar a pesar de las recientes mejoras en la actividad económica mundial. Sin embargo, las medidas de estímulo agresivas implementadas por el Banco Central Europeo (BCE) y el Banco de la Reserva de Nueva Zelanda (RBNZ), sorprendieron a los inversores. Esto ha impulsado al precio del oro, ante las expectativas de que los intereses reales permanezcan bajo presión por un período de tiempo no menor.

El desempeño de la plata y el platino supera al del oro. Los metales preciosos de uso industrial superaron el rendimiento del oro durante la semana pasada, lo que sugiere la posibilidad de que las perspectivas pesimistas estén abatiéndose. De alguna manera los inversores se mantienen cautelosos mientras colocan capitales en la plata y el platino por tercera semana consecutiva, por un total de $43.1 millones y $12.5 millones respectivamente. Aunque el paladio fue el que tuvo mejor desempeño entre los metales preciosos, es el único metal que ha registrado salidas de capitales netas en lo que va de 2016. Sin embargo, esperemos que su momentum de entradas se acentúe a medida que la volatilidad de mercado se modera y repunta la demanda industrial producto de las sólidas ventas de automóviles a nivel mundial.

La toma de beneficios en el crudo impulsa la mayor salida de capitales de estos ETPs desde abril de 2015. La Agencia Internacional de Energía anunció la semana pasada que el precio del barril del crudo podría ya haber tocado un suelo. No obstante, los inversores no parecen dispuestos a arriesgar los beneficios que les costó mucho conseguir y por tanto decidieron la semana pasada retirar un total de $67 millones de los ETPs largos sobre crudo. Por más de que el Brent y el WTI hayan alcanzado su valor más alto desde principios de diciembre de 2015, la volatilidad sigue siendo elevada y podría revertir los beneficios actuales debido a que la demanda de activos de riesgo es frágil. A pesar de que la Administración de Información de Energía de EE.UU informó que la producción en diciembre de 2015 registró la primera caída interanual en más de cuatro años, las reservas yacen en niveles récord (desde 1982). Además, el aumento semanal en las reservas fue el mayor de la historia, lo que indica que la demanda sigue sin lograr absorber la oferta excesiva.

Los eventos clave de la semana. Es una nueva semana de reuniones de bancos centrales que vienen después de las sorpresivas medidas anunciadas por el BCE y el RBNZ. Es así que es el caso del Banco de Japón, el Banco Nacional de Suiza y el Banco de Inglaterra, pero sin dudas, la que acapara toda la atención, es la de la Fed. La reunión del central estadounidense influye a través de dos maneras sobre los precios de las materias primas: la forma en que afecte a la demanda de activos de riesgo y al dólar. Los últimos datos macro estadounidenses a ser conocidos previos a la reunión del FOMC, serán las ventas minoristas y la inflación, los cuales podrían hacer que el comité se incline por un recorte de intereses o no. Cabe observar que el consumo viene evolucionando sólidamente gracias a los bajos precios del crudo y la mejora del mercado laboral. Si estos datos macro a conocerse previo a la reunión mantienen esta tendencia, entonces la Fed podría aumentarlos (justificadamente). De todos modos, pensamos que las probabilidades a que haya un incremento tienen cierto cimio a pesar de que los mercados le asignan menos de un 10% de ocurrencia. De concretarse este incremento, contemplamos que el oro siga valorizándose ante el pesimismo que generaría en la renta variable y a pesar del fortalecimiento que el dólar tendría.

This communication is aimed at sophisticated, professional and institutional investors. Any decision to invest should be based on the information contained in the prospectus (and any supplements thereto) of the relevant Issuer or the Company which includes, inter alia, information on certain risks associated with an investment. The price of any securities may go up or down and an investor may not get back the amount invested. Securities may be priced
